What Is Sound And Light

History Brought To Life

This summer, in a dozen countries before more than a million enchanted beholders — some 80 of the world's historic castles, churches, palaces, pyramids and temples will set the stage for the spectacle of "Sound and Light," a happy marriage of solid stone and winged imagination which has added a new sister to the dramatic arts.

A "Sound and Light" show is a pageant of resurrected time without visible orchestra or actors. Voices, music, stereophonic sound effects come from tape recordings broadcast through hidden amplifiers while lamps, concealed behind masonry or trees, burn bright or dim in accord with the action, change color with the mood, follow the chosen characters as the script leads them more from place to place. One by one, history's illustrious dead seem to step from their dusty frames, they speak, plot, sing, love, die: their movements, their dread unfeelingly the avenue of the spectator's mind.

Sound and Light" is the invention of a French architect, Paul Robert-Houdin.

While he has patented the name Son et Lumiere in French, the method of "Sound and Light" is free for anyone to use.

This summer visitors will be able to see "Sound and Light" spectacles against the background of the Parthenon in Athens, of the Pyramids and the Sphinx in Egypt, the Forum in Rome, the Royal Palace in Madrid and dozens of others.

A steering committee composed of leaders from Appomattox and surrounding counties, and the cities of Farmville and Lynchburg are skeward at work discussing the possibilities of a "Sound and Light" production for the Appomattox National Park for 1965. Editor.

The article above was written by Hubert Leslie for "The Diplomat," then condensed in the "Reader's Digest", May 1961.

A reminder that the new $75 Series E. United States Saving Bond, bearing the portrait of the late President Kennedy, will go on sale May 1, came today from T. Dewitt Evans, County Saving Bonds chairman.

Mr. Evans said that due to the heavy demand for the new bond which is anticipated, many banks and other issuing agents throughout the Nation will accept orders before May 1 from those purchasers who may desire an early date of issue to appear in the validating stamp. Purchase price of the new bond, which will reach full redemption value in seven years and nine months, is $56.25.

Mr. Evans said that the new bond is not a "memorial" to the late President, in that it is no different from other denominations of Savings Bonds, all of which bear portraits of deceased chief executives. However, beneath the portrait of Mr. Kennedy are carried the words from his inaugural address: "Ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country."

Farm Enlarging Loans Available At FHA Offices

Credit needs of farmers in this area faced with developing and enlarging their farms so they will have a successful farm operation are being served by the USDA Farmers Home Administration's farm ownership loan program.

Hunter P. Evans, FHA County Supervisor, reported this fact while explaining this week that this is a nationwide problem faced by many farm families.

"There are thousands of American farmers who need financial assistance in combining small tracts of land, making soil and water improvements, establishing permanent pastures, improving or constructing dwellings and essential farm buildings or taking necessary measures to increase the efficiency and income lings.", Evans pointed out.

Those facing this problem in general—are in a group of some 1,200,000 United States farms that are in need of additional income to remain in business under today's farming conditions.

Evans emphasized that farm ownership loans for enlarging and developing farms are tailored to the individual farm and farmer's needs. The borrower also is given assistance in the analysis of his financial problems and shown how to determine the land resources needed for success.

Farmers Home Administration ownership loan applications may be made at Evans' office at Farmville or Curtis T. Rosch's office at Cumberland.

Three Year Olds Thriving

Three acres of three year old loblolly pines, shown above, are doing well on John L. Harrison's farm. Harrison has planted nearly 23 acres of loblolly on land formerly occupied by hardwood. He says it's necessary to remove sprouts from hardwood stumps one time after the seedlings are planted. Sprouts were removed from the area above just a short time ago.

Alfalfa Weevil Showing Up; Lookout Urged

The alfalfa weevil has already shown up in one county of Virginia, and entomologists at Virginia Polytechnic Institute look for them to appear soon in other areas.

The entomologists say if temperatures continue above normal, Virginia farmers can expect infestations sooner than usual.

Farmers are urged to keep a sharp lookout. Check stands closely and often. When most of the plant tops show some feeding injury, apply the first treatment of one of the recommended insecticides.

Farmers also are reminded that a new chemical — diazinon — is being recommended this year. Used properly, it approaches the effectiveness of heptachlor in its heyday. Malathion, which gave outstanding results, last year when properly used, is still recommended. Heptachlor and methoxychlor have been dropped from the recommended list of chemicals to use to control the weevil.

The residual effectiveness of malathion is usually three to five days; the residual effectiveness of diazinon is longer — 7 to 14 days.
